

Ecopedagogy: Teaching Language and Culture in the Time of Ecological Breakdown

Friday, March 1

12:00-1PM

LAI Conference Room

801 Yale Blvd. NE

Dr. Luis Iñaki Prádanos

Department Chair and Professor of Hispanic Contemporary Studies in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese | Miami University of Ohio

This workshop will consist of a lecture and a practical component in which attendees will create an activity, which they can apply and implement in their classrooms, regardless of the language they teach. Attendees are encouraged to read this short op-ed before the event: "How Did This Class Prepare You for Extinction?" Beyond the Spanish and Portuguese departments, the talk can appeal to humanities scholars interested in environmental humanities, and the workshop will be appropriate for faculty and grad students in any language program.

Originally from Spain, Professor Prádanos did his undergraduate work in Spain and Italy, and completed his M.A. and Ph.D. in the US. His academic interests include environmental humanities (environmental cultural studies, energy humanities, ecocritical theory, urban ecology, and critical posthumanism), postgrowth economics and cultures, and permaculture.

This lecture is free and open to the public. Individuals of all abilities are encouraged to attend UNM events. If you are a person with a disability who requires a reasonable accommodation in order to participate in one of our events, please visit the UNM Accessibility Resource Center website.

LATIN AMERICAN & IBERIAN INSTITUTE

SUSTAINABILITY STUDIES PROGRAM

DEPARTMENT OF SPANISH & PORTUGUESE

LANGUAGE LEARNING CENTER