Water & Climate Change Across the Americas:

Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Headwater Dependent
Systems in Latin America and the American Southwest

May 2 & 3, 2024 | Albuquerque, NM

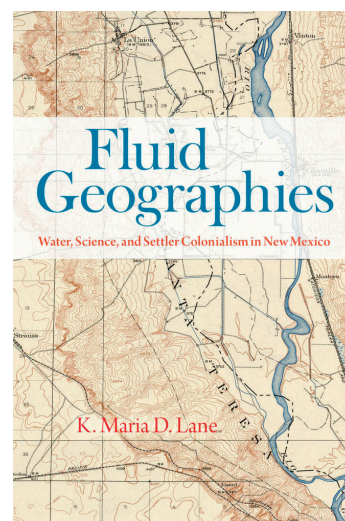

This workshop brings scholars from Latin America into conversation with experts from New Mexico. Attendees will learn about the latest research on Rio Grande and Rio Chama dynamics in New Mexico and how trends in Latin America compare.

Day 1: May 2, 2024 | 8:30AM – 5:00PM
Bobo Room at Hodgin Hall, UNM

Join us for a day of presentations from scholars from both Latin America and The University of New Mexico.

Keynote Presentation at 11:00AM:

“Fluid Geographies: What Are We Missing in Modern Water Management?”
Maria Lane, UNM

Day 2: May 3, 2024 | 7:50AM – 3:30PM
UNM in the Community Mobile Symposium

This mobile series of on-site talks will discuss water and climate change along the Middle Rio Grande. The group will visit three sites throughout the day and hear presentations from researchers at each. The talks are open to the public and participants can join any site or the bus tour. Advance registration is required.
